

DON'T EXPERIMENT.

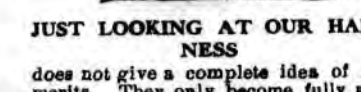

You Will Make No Mistake if You Follow This Holley Citizen's Advice.

Never neglect your kidneys. If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to get to work on your kidneys. These are all symptoms of kidney trouble, and you should seek a remedy which is known to cure the kidneys.

Donan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has cured many stubborn cases in Holley. Follow the advice of a Holley citizen and be cured yourself.

William Lavender, Canal St., Holley, N. Y., says: "I suffered for years with Donan's Kidney Pills, as our family used them with good results. Recently, Mr. Lavender had a serious attack of lumbago. There were the accompaniments—headaches, sleeplessness, languor and trouble from the kidney secretions. He took Donan's Kidney Pills at A. H. Fisk's drug store and he took them. They quickly rid him of the difficulties. His backache has disappeared, the sleep is good and the kidneys have become normal. We think highly of Donan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Miller Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Donan's—and take no other.

JUST LOOKING AT OUR HARNESS does not give a complete idea of its merits. They only become fully apparent when they are brought out by long and constant use of the harness.

Greatest Use of Brass.
According to the American Machinist, the greatest single consumption of brass is for condenser tubes, a battle ship alone having from 30,000 pounds to 40,000 pounds of condenser tubing in it, and, owing to the corrosive effect of sea water, this tubing must continually be replaced. The material used is usually either Muntz metal—60 per cent copper, 40 per cent zinc—or else a mixture of copper, 70, zinc, 29 and the 1.

BUILDS NEW AEROPLANE.

Henri Farman, Frenchman, to Contest for $10,000 Prize.

Paris.—Henri Farman, the Frenchman, who recently achieved so successful a flight in his aeroplane, has formally entered to contest with Santos-Dumont for the Deutsch-Archdeacon Grand Aviation Prize. In order to win the prize, which is valued at about $10,000, the amateur must arise from the ground and in clear flight from the line of departure determined by two posts about 165 feet apart, fly around a point erected at a distance of about 1,650 feet, returning to the point of departure.

On the first attempt made by M. Farman to gain the prize in the presence of the official commission of the Aero Club of France he made a successful trial to arise, but finally appeared to be in clear flight. Unfortunately some of the ropes connected with his aeroplane grazed the roof of the grand stand, and the commission found it impossible to make the award.

An attempt was made after Santos-Dumont had a trial, when M. Farman succeeded in making numerous flights of from about 1,000 feet to about half a mile. However, on each occasion he failed to achieve the prize because he did not succeed in coming back to the point of departure. The consistency of his results, however, has been regarded as remarkable, putting him at once in the front rank of the few who have obtained even creditable flights with aeroplanes.

In order to dispute the prize with M. Farman, M. Santos-Dumont has constructed a new aeroplane, numbered 19, for in this way he distinguishes his aeroplanes and at the same time confesses his enormous interest in the sport, for probably no person before the time of Santos-Dumont has built so many aerial machines.

With this machine he succeeded in covering about 450 feet, or less than half the required distance, to say nothing of the demand that the contestant shall return to the point of departure. As the case now stands it is generally believed that Henri Farman has the better chance of winning the grand prize, which really means more than the acquisition of $10,000, for it will be an achievement which may have far reaching effects on the problem of aerial flight.

Ten years later he was made adviser to the Japanese embassy at Washington and the Hawaiian islands and has been decorated twice by the emperor of Japan. He has an intimate knowledge of diplomatic affairs.

HOME AND CHILDREN

TWO THINGS ALL WOMEN LOVE, SAYS BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Writer Explains Her Assertion That All Women Wish to Marry—Love Helps All Troubles and Trials.

All women wish to marry, declares Beatrice Fairfax in the Chicago American.

Now wait a moment, girls, before you heap contradiction on my head, and I will "bespall myself," as my small niece says.

The love of home and children is in-born in every true woman.

What other than maternal feeling do you suppose attracts the little woman of six years to rock and cradle to her doll baby hour after hour? And what but love of home prompts her to "keep house" under the table or in a quiet nook in the garden?

The baby girl learns to love her before she takes her first toddling steps. From that time on her whole life training leads toward matrimony.

I do not for one moment deny that there are thousands of very happy unmarried women; but at the same time I believe that, provided she marries the man she loves, every woman on earth prefers matrimony to spinsterhood.

And why on earth shouldn't she want to marry? This idea that a girl should be ashamed of wanting to marry is all nonsense.

Isn't the desire for happiness the strongest thing in all of us? And to marry the person you love and who loves you is happiness for a time at least, and if the two are well suited it means happiness for life.

Woman is essentially a home maker. She likes to make people cozy and "comfy." She loves to do things for those she loves.

I know one little woman who has a pretty custom, of a trial, when her husband comes home at night she always hovers about him until he is comfortably seated in his own special chair, behind his own special reading lamp behind him. When he is quite settled she gives a contented little sigh and looks at him in beaming satisfaction, murmurs softly to herself: "There."

She would be amazed if she knew she did it; but she never misses it, and her husband gives her an adoring look which amply repays all her trouble.

No modest girl runs after men nor shows that she hopes to marry, but all the same she does want to marry, don't you, my girls?

If it should happen that you don't marry—and very many charming women do not marry—don't feel that you are all failures.

Don't marry simply for the sake of having "Mr." attached to your name. There is only one thing to marry for, and that is love. If you cannot marry for love, much better remain unmarried.

Married life is not always rose-colored. There are many times when the greatest patience and tact are necessary to make things run smoothly. But love helps all troubles and trials. Go ahead, dears. Dream your dreams. And when the prince of men comes wooing you marry him and live happily ever after, for happy marriage is the best career open to woman.

BOOK FOR PINS AND NEEDLES.
Combination Very Convenient to Have at Hand.

It is often very convenient to have a pin-cushion and needle-book at hand hanging from the corner of the looking-glass on one's dressing-table, and in the little sketch which is given herewith an ingenious arrangement is shown whereby these two useful articles may be combined in one.

The pin-cushion is of an ordinary oblong shape, covered with pale green linen upon which pink roses are delicately embroidered in a wreath design, while the edges are outlined with darker green silk cord.

The needle-case has a pale green linen cover with the word "Needles" embroidered in it in rose-pink, and this also is edged with dark green cord. A pale green ribbon is used to hang the combined cushion and case, either on the looking-glass, as already suggested, or on a nail fastened in the wall.

PISO'S

Conquer That Cough

Don't go around with a cough on your chest. Every day that you let it remain, the tighter its grip becomes. The cough becomes more violent and exhausting; the delicate bronchial passages get inflamed under the constant hacking; the lungs become lacinated under the constantly recurring paroxysms.

With Piso's Cure there is a soothing and healing effect upon the entire respiratory mucous membrane. It has stood the test for nearly half a century as the one reliable remedy for consumption, colds and all chest affections. It goes right to the origin of the trouble, removes the cause
